GWA To Be Carbon Neutral by 2050 -Tailspinner

Eagle River, WI GWA Organizer Buck Tailspinner interrupted the Tuesday happy hour at Pike's Pine Isle to lay out his vision for GWA in the future.

"It's a big stretch goal," acknowledged Tailspinner, while sipping on a Leinie's Original. "But I really think that the Leinie's Guys can save the planet if they get on board. Our goal is to be carbon neutral by GWA-2050."

"The way Washington is throwing money around, if Joey B. catches wind of this I wouldn't be surprised to see a couple million come floating into the GWA coffers," explained Tailspinner. "And I'd expect Tony Evers to chip in a few grand too."

Bar patrons react enthusiastically to Tailspinner's announcement.

"Yup, I figure if GWA starts going green there'll be all sorts of people looking to chip in. With inflation running rampant and all of the Leinie's Guys on fixed incomes, we'll need all the help we can get to keep this thing going," assessed Tailspinner.

The Leinie's Guys reaction to the announcement was mixed.

"I guess I could dial back the amount of beans that I put in my chili if that helps," offered up Leinie's Guy Jackson Alters.

"We could all take a couple tablets of Beano with our morning coffee," suggested Camp Safety Director Mikey Bishop. "That should cut down of some of the emissions."

"I'm thinking that we'll all be dead by then," assessed Camp Science Officer JJ Henry. "I guess that would make us pretty carbon neutral."

"I've been working on a design for a pedal powered pontoon boat," stated Leinie's Guy Deano Radke. "It'll kind of be like one of those pedal bars, but on a pontoon. That should help. It'll have swivel stools, so the guys can all pedal and drink at the bar and then just spin around and fish when we get to the spot."

"If we had to, we could all just fish from shore," nodded Leinie's Guy Keet Moericke. "I know a spot down by the Manitowish that can be good...that is if there aren't any trolls there."

"I'm getting a new boat and it's gonna have a gas engine, a big one," grunted Leinie's Guy Lard Krueger. "I'll plant a tree or something to make up for it."

Always the voice of reason, Leinie's Guy Puck Johnson pointed out, "That gives us some time."

Campfire Chat Series To Continue - Henry

Wausau, WI Campfire Chat Series Coordinator Joe 'JJ' Henry on Friday announced that the popular series would once again be featured at GWA-2023.

"What the hell else are we gonna do when we're sitting around the campfire?" posed Henry. "We might as well just keep it going."

"I'm going to need all of the guys to get in touch with me and let me know their topics so I can get everything ready," admonished Henry. "It's not like I can just throw this together at the last minute, you know."

Gentlemen, please get your presentations in order and let JJ know what you'll need as far as sound systems, lighting, and seating.

They Really Said It

(Quotes from GWA-2022)

"They've all seen my dick."

-Puck, regarding the fact that the Point guys in the neighboring campsite bring women to camp

"If I don't lift up a little bit, it doesn't come out."

-Lard, after a loud fart

"I don't like hackers. They're not good people."

-Lard

"Deano, I need your stuff again."

-Mikey

"We should be in the musky sucker business. It's better than Bitcoin!"

-Puck

"What is the plural of sasquatch?"

-Puck

My bag is perfect. I'm really happy with my bag."

-Puck, referring to his sleeping bags performance in the camper

"The shitter by the beach is luxurious."

-Lard

"Not much solid going on, but stuff is coming out."

-Mikey

"Eight grown men walking around camp looking for the missing baba."

-Joe

Conversation:

Mikey: "Wolfe, what's the thing you're most afraid of with your upcoming kid?"

Wolfe: "That the baby won't latch and I'll have to wake up at night to feed him formula."

Mikey: "Put some sugar on her nipples."

Buck Shots...

Holy crap, we're only 55 days and two feet of ice away from launching boats at GWA-2023!

As your bladders start to spasm and your sphincters start to pucker, try to stay calm and get your gear in order. Fishing licenses expire March 31...get on it.

The 39th annual Great Walleye Assault is cresting the horizon! Let's get crankin'!
